

JUNE PAK was born in Seoul, South Korea, and now lives in Toronto, Canada. Her practice-based research continues to question a different means to articulate visualization of ethnicity. Coming from her personal experience of living in Canada as Korean-Canadian, the hyphenated identity is a central theme in her practice. Her multi-disciplinary works (photo, video, sound, text, installation, performance and writing) have shown around nationally and internationally. She received numerous grants and awards from Canada Council for the Arts, Ontario Arts Council and Toronto Arts Council for her projects, including the K.M. Hunter Artist Award (2004) and the Chalmers Arts Fellowship (2017). She teaches as a part-time lecturer at University of Toronto (Visual Studies program) and at OCAD University (Cross-Disciplinary Art and Integrated Media Programs).

CURATORIAL PROJECTS

CLICK! Media Arts Festival, Western University (2006)

The Visual Arts building at the university had turned to an exhibition site with various levels of undergraduate students' media works, ranging from digital images, single-channel videos, installations and performance.

By Means of Translation, the Great Hall, Ontario College of Art & Design (2006)

This special presentation of students' work was designed to encourage them to actively involve research process as part of their studio practice. The works were a wide range of works by students from Interdisciplinary Research Lab (GART 3B01).

Signal & Noise, Artcite Inc., Windsor, CA (2004)

As a guest curator for Media City 10: International Film & Video Festival, I have curated a number of local and international artists whose work respond to the concept of sound by utilizing video and audio.

Regional Student Work Screening, Media City 10, Capitol Theatre, Windsor, CA (2004)

A selection of students' work from Windsor, London, Hamilton and Detroit

Response, LeBel Gallery, University of Windsor (2004)

By taking advantage of the unique location of Windsor as the largest border city, this curated exhibition asked the participants to address the site, the art building which is situated at the frontline of the most busy borderline between the US and Canada, in their own interpretation including its history, architecture and location.
